

Follow along with us as we cruise onboard our 56' Ocean Yacht.

Somewhere on the Water

January 25, 2022 – Tuesday, Day 49
Charleston, SC

A little cloudy but a calm, no wind 57degree day!

Tried getting on the rowing machine this morning. I should have gotten up earlier. 2-10minute blocks separated by a few phone calls and then 5-minutes on weights. Back to work.

This morning instead of going to the grocery store in the rain Haleigh and I postponed until further notice. It rained about ½ hour – 45 minutes but that amount of time was enough to interfere with Mark & my lunch plans with Scott. I worked with Scott at the aquarium. It has been 20 years since seeing each other outside of FaceBook.

We ate lunch at Lewis BBQ. We all had the pulled pork sandwich. I had the coleslaw and Mark had a house-specialty side dish:

GREEN CHILE CORN PUDDING

#1 Side! Imagine a Cheesy Cornbread Casserole with Diced Hatch Chiles (flavor, not heat) (vegetarian)

What a special treat to see him. Scott has always been ranked as one of my favorite bosses. Even-tempered, very generous, and polite by nature.

The SC Aquarium after all these years has been one of my favorite career experiences. It was a special time for all of us who worked there.

We were going to go to Home Team BBQ for lunch but they were closed for renovations. I have never been to Home Team BBQ but it must be that time of year for renovations. It is a slow time for tourists.

Many restaurants that were at one time considered my 'go to' favorites are closed for various reasons; Renovations, covid, too much competition.

Mark took a few casts with his new fishing rod that he received at Christmas but there doesn't seem to be a lot of fish biting this time of year.

Mark wondered what lure you would need to catch a dolphin. Just kidding...lol.