

Kingston was Canada's first capital. It holds the nickname, the limestone city.

If you click the link below, it brings you to a brochure that describes the sites we saw on our walk. We enjoyed Kingston very much.

2:45 pm – arrived Picton, Prince Edward, Ontario, anchorage.

The cruise was nice. We did some wind and small white caps, but overall it was a beautiful day. We met a few boats along the way, and we were not alone at this anchorage. Jeff and his daughter, on board M/V Big Wave, who stayed in Kingston last night as well, were anchored nearby.

Error correction!

I stated in the previous update that we saw the Capitol Building. That was City Hall. Although Kingston was once the capital, it is not currently.

Fun Facts:

Lake Ontario is an ecological wonder. Every drop of water within the Great Lakes basin flows through Lake Ontario. Being so close to the Atlantic Ocean makes Lake Ontario a crucial corridor for transportation, water exchange, and fish migration. The diversity of habitats surrounding the lake includes sand dunes, forests, wetlands, and rocky cliffs, each providing home to thousands of plant and animal species. Not only is it home to a variety of wildlife, but Lake Ontario is home — and provides drinking water — to over 9 million people. Although it is the smallest of the Great Lakes, more Canadians live in the Lake Ontario watershed than any other watershed in the country.

- The 14th largest lake in the world by surface area
- The smallest lake by surface area of all the Great Lakes
- Has an average depth of 86 m (283 ft) and a maximum depth of 244 m (800 ft)
- The last (most easterly) lake in the chain of Great Lakes, leading directly to the St. Lawrence River and out to the Atlantic Ocean

We had a nice night at anchor. Friday was a holiday, so we had some cocktails, played our music loud just like we like it.
